A LIFE OF MISERY

From Skin Disease. Sufferings Great. Uses Cuticura. Instant Relief and Speedy Cure.

I was severely afflicted with prurigo, which was not only annoying, but a life of misery. So after receiving your book, I read it carefully, then decided I would give your remedies a trial. Purchased one set of CUTICURAS. After a few days' use I received great relief. I can pronounce the CUTICURA REMEDIES the best skin medicine yet known to me. I would willingly recommend them to all who are afflicted with skin diseases. For the one year of misery I suffered with prurigo is beyond my knowledge to express it. A thousand thanks would not pay the CUTICURA REMEDIES the cure they gave me. I can freely say, all who are in misery with any skin disease, give the CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial, and I feel satisfied to say you will be happy.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1891.

SPEECH OF COL. WM. PENN LLOYD

Of the 32d Senatorial District of Pennsylvania.

Delivered in the Senate May 21st, 1891, on the Subject of the Equalization of Taxation.

MR. LLOYD SAID:—Mr. President, The Senate has certainly been favored with an abundance of advice upon the subject of taxation during the past month—advice as varied in quality as voluminous in quantity. Every interest affected by it has, I believe, been accorded a patient and attentive hearing.

The learning of the jurist; the study of the economist; the practical experience of the merchant, the manufacturer, the farmer and the laborer, as well as the vagaries of the theorist, have been marshalled on one side or the other; and all of these have been supplemented by the broad intelligence and searching criticisms of the public press. We have had earnest appeal; able and exhaustive argument; clear and candid statement, and boisterous and menacing threat; and I believe we have tried to profit by all we have heard or read. This unusual interest awakened in the public mind evinces the deep and widespread attention aroused throughout the Commonwealth upon the question before us; and that it is a subject of such grave importance to the Commonwealth, that its consideration should not be trammeled by any influence inspired by interests which are simply special, individual or political in character.

I think, sir, we can also gather from this controversy the further important fact that the thing sought to be accomplished—the equalization of taxation—has been almost entirely lost sight of in the din of the war waged against the Commission's bill—the means proposed to accomplish it.

Even the ardor of conviction inspired by the conception of the necessity of a proposed reform, sometimes pushes its friends beyond the limits of a sound discretion, and I believe it would be wise to temper such zeal with this reflection.

On the other hand, the opponents of the bill, with some exceptions, have not only utterly refused to recognize any distinction between the merits of the object proposed to be accomplished, and the machinery of the bill, but have sought by most ingenious evasion to bury the former beneath the mountains of epithet and invective which they have heaped upon the latter.

Lines fifty and fifty-one of the first section of the Commission's bill, which read as follows, to wit: "TANGIBLE PERSONAL PROPERTY" shall include all property, other than real, excluding all the evidences or representatives of property, set forth the principle upon which that bill is framed.

This definition of taxable property is founded on the assumption that all property should bear an equal burden of taxation, and the cumbersome and oppressive machinery necessary to carry out this assumption, together with a very general dissent from the truth of the proposition itself, have occasioned a large measure of the opposition now existing to that bill.

May I inquire of those who favor the Commission's bill as it came from the House whether household furniture, farm stock and implements and the mechanic's tools, all of which are wearing out by the daily use of providing home comforts, or in securing the means of a frugal livelihood; and the merchant's ever varying and depreciating stock in trade; the uncertain value of book accounts, and the raw material of the manufacturer, together with the machinery of his plant which may not be attached to the realty, are "TAXABLE PROPERTY" in the same sense as productive capital such as investments in real estate securities, corporate loans, dividend paying stocks or any other form which yields a certain remunerative return? The first is either passive or diminishing in value with use, while the second is active and accumulating.

The struggles of our merchants and manufacturers for the last fifteen years have demonstrated the fact that they can bear little more taxation than they are now paying—some exceptions may be found to this rule, but these exceptions proceed from advantages of capital and location, or other accidental circumstances not inherent in the business itself. Striking illustrations of this are ready at hand. We have them here in this city, under the observation of our own eyes. I have them in my district. In the adjoining district on the West the Senator from Huntingdon will also find them, and every other Senator on the floor will discover them in his district, and that without any labored search, for they thrust themselves upon every thoughtful observer throughout the State. But I will not now detain the Senate by educing special examples—that can be done hereafter, if incredulous inquiry should insist upon it, and the patience of the Senate permit.

This principle of taxing all property equally without regard to its economic relations wrought into a tax bill makes such a bill a great drag-net of exceedingly small meshes, which indiscriminately gathers, in its remorseless sweep, interests whose limited and precarious returns could yield but little revenue and live. It also makes every citizen inspired with the instincts of a freeman feel that it is the iron grasp of a mailed hand of despotism which presses his shoulder, instead of the gentle, deferential, touch of a government which he calls his own; and renders him keenly sensible of the fact that the inquisitorial machinery which it must adopt, dishonors his manhood by discrediting his integrity.

But this was eliminated from the bill as was also the taxing of mercantile and manufacturing interests, so much opposed and justly too, I think, before it was offered by the Senator from York as an amendment. This left but one other prominent objection to the bill, that of the method by which it proposes to tax Transportation and Transmission Companies and my amendment will remove that. The system of taxing these corporations is not changed by this amendment but the tax collected is held as a separate fund and append directly to relieve the burden of local taxation.

The property of transportation companies, extending through a county, bears a different relation to the county, and also to the State, than that sustained to the county, by all other property located within its limits. It is quasi state property and pays no local tax. It receives its franchise on a contract with the state to return something in consideration thereof. That something is to so conduct its business as to enure to the general good, hence its benefits to the state must be generally distributed. The tax yielded by these corporations is one of the benefits derived from their location in the State. It has always heretofore been collected by the State and distributed on the principle that it belonged equally to all the people, as our tax laws will uniformly attest, and has been applied exclusively to the expenses of the State government, which is the most equitable general distribution that could be devised.

Now, when it occurs, as it has now occurred, that the amount of tax justly due from these corporations to secure an equalization of the general burden of taxation, is greater than is required for State purposes, can any valid reason be assigned why the same equitable principle should not be applied in the distribution of the excess of such tax fund to relieve the local needs of the State at large? We think not, and submit that the fund proposed to be raised for the relief of local taxation, by the taxation of railroad property, should be distributed to all the counties of the State.

The amendment which I have offered proposes to do this by giving forty per centum of the fund realized by the tax imposed by it to county expenses and sixty per centum to the school fund to be collected and paid over by the state treasurer.

The preamble to the bill before the senate recites that "there is a wide-spread demand for the enactment of such measures as will bring about the equalization of taxation and the relief of local taxation on real estate."

Are there just grounds for this demand and will this bill as it now stands satisfy that demand?

The legislature of 1889, in the concurrent resolution providing for the revenue commission, says, pamphlet laws, 1889, page, 456, that "It is a recognized fact that the present system of taxation has worked an injustice by exempting from local taxation large amounts of property, both real and personal, belonging to corporations, and that there is an urgent demand for the reduction of taxation for local purposes."

The report of this commission, made to the present legislature, page 10, declares that: "It is conceded by all candid and well-informed persons that our present tax system is not only grossly inequitable, but that it bears with crushing weight upon the only industry which, at the present time, can be called depressed; to wit, agriculture."

Governor Beaver, in his last annual message, page 7, though with apparently cautious circumspection, says that "It seems to be admitted on all sides that there is inequality in greater or less degree."

Governor Pattison, in his inaugural address of January 20th, 1891, page 5, is more pronounced in his convictions on the subject, and thus puts himself on record: "Of scarcely less importance is equalization of the burdens of taxation. For many years there has been a well-grounded complaint against the inefficiency, the inequality, the ineffectiveness and the partiality of the tax laws of the state."

The platform of the Democratic party, adopted at Scranton, July 2nd, 1890 contains this plank:

THIRD:—That State and local reform is necessary in order that the taxation for county, municipal and township purposes may be equitably adjusted, and the unjust discrimination against land remedied.

The platform of the Republican party, adopted by the convention held in this city, in June of the same year, places that party upon record in the following clear and emphatic language:

It declares "that as the depression under which our agricultural interests now suffer, has made the present system of taxation bear too heavily on them, and we therefore pledge ourselves to lighten that burden, and, as far as possible, to equalize taxation."

This plank, it will be observed, is more explicit than that adopted at Scranton. There were very pertinent reasons why it should be so as it is prefaced in the same platform by the declaration that "For thirty years the finances of this state have been under the control of our party." (I quote verbatim.)

The control of the finances of the State includes the control of its taxing machinery, and a party which admits that it has been thus entrusted with such control, and has permitted a prominent feature of that system of finance to remain unmodified, amid the great changes which have taken place in our economic conditions, during the lapse of a generation a system which has continued a method of taxation that "Bears too heavily on our agricultural interests" and one of the chief vices of which is inequality must certainly feel like making hasty amends for the errors of that method. The same platform further declares that "If thereby there should be necessity for enlarging our surplus revenue, we favor a just and equitable increase in the taxation of property of corporations. Why the qualifying preface to this proviso? Is not justice and equity always in order in imposing the necessary burdens of government on the people?

Must not all parties and interests come to consider this question of taxation in the light of these principles of fairness and square dealing, before we can hope for a satisfactory adjustment of the subject? And is not this, then, an opportune time to examine it and by candid and earnest effort to so shape this bill as to at least in a measurable degree secure the relief asked for?

Assuming, then, that there is just ground for complaint against our present system of taxation, and that inequality is the prominent feature of that complaint, I shall next briefly consider the measure of that inequality. On this question, as we are aware, there is a diversity of opinion. I confess that in my efforts to arrive at a correct conclusion, I have not been able to adopt the views of either extreme, yet I have not allowed that vexing dilemma to weaken the convictions that there is an inequality that demands an immediate remedy, nor should we permit the perplexing difficulties which it is alleged with seemingly some force, surround the subject, to abate our efforts to find such a remedy.

The data, which I beg leave to submit, will not be questioned for its over estimates. It may be for its under estimates, but I would rather err on that side, for he who seeks "Equity must do equity."

Hon. Thomas McCamant, Auditor General, and Chairman of the Revenue Commission, states on page 34, report of commission, that the amount of corporate capital which pays tax to the Commonwealth is $700,000,000 and that the tax paid amounts in the aggregate to $3,300,000 which is about four and seven-tenths mills on the dollar, but he names no estimate of the rate paid by real estate, the assessed valuation of which he gives at $1,840,433,540.

The majority report of the Tax Commission, page 15, states that "From the best information obtainable, we conclude that the property now subject to local taxation is paying an average rate of from twelve to fifteen mills" and "that corporations are now paying tax which would be equivalent to two and one-half mills on the dollar." This report further shows, page 13, and very conclusively too, I think, that the aggregate amount of taxes paid annually in this state, is about $40,000,000—that corporations, bank stock, money at interest, and mercantile tax pay $4,006,203 24 while the total amount of tax paid by the present subjects of taxation to the local authorities for local purposes is about $36,000,000, and concludes from this that real estate in Pennsylvania is paying about 86 per cent. of the taxes on all property taxed.

These estimates, though varying much as to the degree of the inequality, yet both show very conclusively that such an equality exists, and to such an extent as to have become a matter of marked injustice to some of the great interests, which should be fostered and protected by the laws.

In addition I shall supplement these estimates with some specific facts, showing the inequality which exists in the taxation of farm real estate.

I invite your attention to some data which I have verified by careful personal investigation. I have the amount of tax collected from, and the market price of, fifty-four farms located in five different townships of Cumberland and York counties, and within a radius of ten miles of this capitol. They are owned by the following persons and estates:—David R Merkle, 2; S. M. Hertzler, 2; Martin Mumma, 2; John Shaeffer, 1; Wilson Walters, 1; J. J. Dull, 1; J. M. Underwood, 2; Robert Coruman, 3; Martin Best, 2; W. J. Rose, 2; Levi Lantz, 3; Jacob Barber, 2; John Umberger, 1; Geo. Hummel, 2; Christian Dietz, 1; R. H. Thomas, 1; John Strong's heirs, 3; the Moser estate, 6; and the McCormick estate, 15.

The average rate of tax paid by these farms is seven and a half mills on the dollar of their actual market value, which is a fair measure of the average rate paid in these counties, and doubtless throughout the state. The amount of tax on a farm valued at $10,000 is thus about $75.

If we convert the investment of such a farm into capital stock, and tax it as our transportation companies are now taxed, on its capital stock and gross receipts, and estimate its gross receipts at $1,000 and its net income at 4 per cent., the tax would amount to twenty-eight dollars ($28.00) instead of seventy-five dollars ($75 00), or scarcely more than one-third the amount now paid. If we take into account also that the capital stock of corporations seldom represents the full value of their property (as it is now practically taxed through the medium of dividends earned) we may conclude that while these corporations pay but two and a half mills on the dollar, real estate, in the aggregate, pays fifteen mills and farm property from seven to ten mills on the dollar. (It is upon this estimate that I have fixed the 3 mill rate named in the amendment offered). And as Prof Jno. Hamilton of our State Agricultural College, in his valuable paper on this subject, states that "on comparing the rates levied on different objects of taxation, we find that mortgages on real estate pay a three mill rate, while the real estate covered by them pays from ten to fifteen mills." The mortgager also pays this rate on the whole valuation of his property, without any deduction for the mortgage debt, and some one pays the double tax of three mills on the mortgage, most likely the mortgager. Banks and saving institutions pay six mills on their capital stock, while the owner of real estate located in cities and boroughs, pays fifteen mills on his capital stock. He also pays fifteen mills on debts, while bonds and mortgages in the hands of corporations theoretically pay three mills, but practically pay nothing.

What has brought about this great inequality in the distribution of the burdens of taxation? The report of the Revenue Commission, page 7, answers this inquiry very clearly and satisfactorily, as follows:

"The statutes which specify the property to be taxed for local purposes were enacted more than half a century ago, and have not been subsequently amended. Since that time, however, new forms of property have been created, railroads, telegraphs, telephones and the like, which in the aggregate, possess a very large value. This newly created property has been taxed for state purposes alone. Thus two distinct systems have been developed, which have little or no relation to each other and all the expense of county, municipal and township government, the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges, the greater part of the cost of the support of the poor and of maintaining our common schools are borne by the few subjects of taxation designated by the act of April 15, 1834."

Laws which apply to the social and business relations of society must be modified and amended to meet the changed conditions of that society they will inevitably work injustice to certain classes.

As well might we expect our laws of fifty-seven years ago regulating local taxation to serve just and equitable purposes in a state like Pennsylvania, in which vast material changes have been wrought during that time, as to clothe the fully developed form of stalwart manhood with the skimp garments of the school-boy.

It has been tersely and truthfully said that 'THE AMERICAN FARMER, though he cultivates the most fertile soil in the world, and ought to be the most prosperous member of the community, is constantly engaged in a hard struggle to secure a comfortable support for his family and a moderate education for his children and to pay his taxes and keep out of debt."

Is this state of affairs due to lack of industry, frugality and want of skill on the part of the farmer? His labor is harder and he works more hours and is more sparing in his expenditures than any considerable number of those engaged in other occupations.

Should his labors not entitle him to the same comforts as others?

The world moves and the farmer has the right to move with it. Shall he be relegated to the primitive days of our fathers—to carpetless floors, musicless homes, plain fare and homespun garments while all the other classes enjoy the advantages, comforts and many of the luxuries of the times?

Nor is this unthrift due to the farmers' poor work. He does it better now than ever before, and raises larger crops. His skill and intelligence have increased production in our state at least twenty-five per cent. in the last thirty years.

There have been numerous causes at work to produce this distressed condition of the agricultural interests. No doubt it cannot be all charged to inequality of taxation, but that, unquestionably, has had much to do with it.

The natural causes which have contributed to the depressed condition of our Agricultural interest, such as overproduction, occasioned by the sudden development of our arable territory, and others which might be named, are working out their own cure and as far as these are concerned, a brighter day has already dawned upon the farmer; but many of what may be termed the artificial causes which have contributed to this depression, still remain; chief among which (as the antiquated tax laws of Pennsylvania clearly indicate) has been the neglect to provide by new or amended laws that encouragement and protection demanded by the growth of the times.

For the last quarter of a century it seems that the paternal eye of our great Commonwealth has been so attracted to the younger (perhaps more precocious, at least more self-assertive of her family of interests), that she has lost sight of her elder progeny — the plain, patient plodder who first put her feet upon the royal road to the proud eminence she has reached, and upon whose strong arm she must ever lean for her most substantial support.

It is true that the inequality of taxation on real estate is not as great on farm property as that located in municipalities, as is shown by their respective mill-rates; but the meager returns the farmer receives on his investment, makes it greater in proportion to the returns from other real estate and renders him less able to bear it.

Where the doctrine of the divine right of the few to rule according to the dictates of an individual will prevail, the idea of civil rights is a very obscure and confused conception, but in this government "by and for the people," it is a clearly defined, concrete thought, and is hourly attracting more and more earnest and intelligent attention. It is recognized here with us that civil rights have their reciprocal obligations; that it is the duty of the citizen to contribute to the support of the government that protects him; that the right to tax, which is the highest exercise of state sovereignty, is fully granted; but that that sovereign power must be limited and restrained to the necessities of the case, and must be exercised with a just regard to the rights and duties of each individual of the aggregate which makes up the State.

First, then, the State, in the exercise of this unlimited sovereignty, must take no more of the property of the citizen than is necessary to maintain the government honestly and economically administered; and, secondly, it must see to it that the required burden of taxation is equally imposed.

References to these principles I respectfully submit, are not out of place in this discussion, when we recall the fact that we are here to legislate for the people, who stand on a higher plane of general, practical intelligence than any other on the earth; and that they have thoroughly digested these principles, and realize all their force and justice, and that the indications are multiplying every day that they are growing more earnest and persistent in their request that they be enforced.

I take it, then, that our imperative duty here is to inquire whether the bill before us will, or how far it will, secure the equalization of taxation upon all the great interests, nurtured and protected by the Commonwealth, and not what particular individuals or interests may be required to pay more or less tax under its provisions than under present laws. With malice toward none and equity for all, I think we should address ourselves to the subject before us.

It is alleged that corporations do not bear their just proportion of taxation. Of this, I think, there can be no question.

I believe, sir, that I can put a just estimate on the vast influence corporate enterprise has exercised in developing the material interests of our country. Our transportation companies have belted the continent with iron arteries along which the blood of a marvelous energy is leaping; have inspired the spirit which has leveled forests, redeemed deserts, made the waste places to bloom, planted villages and towns and reared magnificent cities where the track of the Indian's moccasin is still fresh in the sand—thus turning the full-orbed refulgence of material civilization upon vast regions which had slept in darkest savagery since the world was peopled. All honor is also due to capital and to the masterful energy and intelligence of the brainy men who have applied its power in accomplishing these magnificent results.

But the sturdy, industrious laborer and the skillful mechanic, the careful merchant and the enterprising manufacturer are also entitled to a just share of this marvelous national progress.

The farmer, too, has contributed his full pro rata to this giant force of human energy. He has assisted in subduing a continent, has furnished much of the raw material for our factories, of the bread for the operatives and of the manhood for our civilization; he has helped to sustain the nation's credit with his hard earned dollars, and to rescue endangered liberty with his conscientious ballot; and his sons were found in the front ranks of the bravest and the most efficient defenders of the UNION.

MR. PRESIDENT, I have great faith in the efficiency of just and wholesome laws adjusted to the requirements of existing conditions.

Jeremy Bentham says, in his Principles of the Civil Code, Vol. 1, Page 307, that "Law alone, has accomplished what all the natural feelings were not able to do; law alone, has been able to create a fixed and durable position which deserves the name of property.

The law alone, could accustom men to submit to the yoke of foresight, at first painful to be borne, but afterwards, agreeable and mild; it alone, could encourage them to labor—superfluous at present which they are not to enjoy until the future. Economy has had many enemies and they are spendthrifts, or men who would enjoy without taking the trouble to produce. Labor is too painful for idleness; it is too slow for impatience; cunning and injustice underhandedly conspire to appropriate its fruits, insolence and audacity plot to sieze them by open force.

Hence society, always tottering, always threatened, never at rest, lives in the midst of snares. It requires in the legislator, vigilance constant and sustained, and power always in action to defend it against this constantly reviving crowd of adversaries

The time has certainly arrived in the history of Pennsylvania, a state that professes to be a government for the people, when her legislators should make it a special subject of concern to secure through her civil code equal justice to all interests, classes and conditions.

SIR:—EQUAL and exact justice to all, and special privileges to none, was the rule of statesmanship adopted by the great founder of our Commonwealth, whose illustrious and venerable name she had interwoven with her own; and the integrity of purpose with which he followed that rule can be read in the twisted cords of manly strength seen in that benignant face which looks down upon the Senate from the canvas behind your chair. He renewed the times of truth and justice, condensing in a fair, free commonwealth not rash equality, but equal rights.

We as legislators, cannot err by pursuing that same rule.

The subject under consideration, I believe can be so determined by this Senate as to accomplish this end at least in a measurable degree, on the question of taxation; and the public confidence, inspired by such action on our part, will open the way for a satisfactory adjustment of other vexing subjects now agitating the public mind. It will do much to dissipate the impression that our state government is gradually being converted into a mere machine which, by its laws, fosters a clashing and contention of interests, such as the apparent antagonism between labor and capital and others that might be named, that should have no reasons to be inimical to each other, and which encourages the more powerful and commanding to secure all the privileges and evade all the obligations they can.

The people of our state, I believe, still cling to the good old doctrine of our fathers that her sovereignty overtops all other sovereignties, whether individual or corporate, and are demanding in tones of potential significance that that sovereignty shall be exercised with rigid fidelity, for the general good of the whole people.

The interests that are opposing equalization of taxation now, if there be any such, in my humble opinion, are not acting wisely. They may be compelled to pay as much for the remaining three books of the Sibyl as was first demanded for the original nine.

If we are willing to give the time and attention to the subject which its importance demands, I have no fears that notwithstanding the dark hints that the subject is too occult for our mastery, this legislature is capable of framing such an equitable tax measure as that when the wisdom of its provisions have been practically demonstrated, the day in which it becomes a law will be a day

"In golden letters to be set,
Among the high tides of the calendar."

For my part, I am willing to make the effort, and I regard it a duty which we cannot escape. "To fight it out on that line, if it takes all summer."

This amendment is offered as a contribution in that direction.

Upon a fair valuation of the property of these corporations it will be taxing them about 5½ mills on the dollar while the lowest rate paid by real estate is seven and one-half mills.

Upon a very moderate estimate of the amount of tax which should be secured in this way, it would distribute to the counties about $300 to every one thousand inhabitants and more than two millions dollars to the schools which added to what this bill otherwise proposes in the line of distribution to these objects will, I believe, furnish substantial relief from the burden of local taxation.

FOUR HUNDRED and sixty-two Danes will settle on 1,700 acres of land in Prince George's county, near Laurel, Md.

Where the Kisses Grow.

They leap from the soul of a baby
And then all over it spread,
From the white and pink of its toe tips,
To the halo of gold round its head;
From the depths of its dainty dimples,
From the roseate, laughter-turned lips,
From the smooth, shapely neck and shoulders
To the tapering finger tips.

They're hidden within every heart-fold,
And cuddled down close to the core,
And, tho' they are evermore gathered,
Still I find there a thousand-fold more!
And each one seems softer and sweeter
Than the treasure I found just before—
Till I wonder if ever the sweetest
Is taken from baby's vast store.

So daily I search for and seize them,
And hourly I pluck a new prize—
Sometimes from the whitest of foreheads,
Sometimes from the brightest of eyes;
And I whisper—O! angel-kissed baby,
Do you feel—can you ever know—
Of the wonderful worth of these kisses
That ever continue to grow?
Of the wearisome woes that they soften?
Of the heart cares they curtain from sight?
That their magic leaps out through the sunshine,
And on thro' the knells of the night?

I hold that we're higher and better
For every fresh kiss that we take,
For every fond love-token given—
When given for sacred love's sake;
For, if purity's planted in earthdom,
Then surely it springs from the soul,
Of that beautiful, angel-like being,
As its life-page begins to unroll.

So I'll gather them early and often,
From the bright curly head to the toe,
I can't rob the wee tot of its treasures—
For still they'll continue to grow;
And in after-years there'll gleam a mem'ry
That backward forever will flow,
To that bonnie-eyed babe of the bygone,
Whose kisses no longer may grow.

WHICH TOOK HIM?

Mrs. Vincent, widowed and wealthy, looked haughty and fierce.

It was 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the sun took the liberty to intrude through the window into the library, furnished in purple leather and walled with books, which had had a pretty complete rest for the ten years that the late Vincent had been in his grave.

Mrs. Vincent sat and glared.

Her dark, prominent and wrathfully astonished eyes had for their target a young man, in whose bearing appeared a singular mixture of deference and defiance.

He, on his part, saw before him a lady under fifty, but not far. The lips were yet full and red, and her figure, though ample, still retained agreeable lines. If her hair was white, the black eyebrows held their color and emphasized the air of command to which the Roman contour of the nose most contributed.

"Well, I never!" she cried, slapping down a pack of cards on the table.

The man smiled slightly.

A young man, whose curly brown hair, cheerful blue eyes, uptwisted mustache, and a firm chin—a fresh, alert, compact, healthy young man, whose loose, elegant costume proved that he understood how to achieve that careless grace which so charms women. An intelligent young man, with cynical confidence in his smile.

He stood unfrightened, just the sort of young man who should not be what he was—secretary to a mature California street widow of spotless reputation and large means.

"Well, I never!" the lady exclaimed.

The young man spoke resolutely:

"No, Mrs. Vincent; I shall play piquet with you no more. Piquet is a good enough game, and I am not averse to it, in reason; but I object to piquet in the forenoon, in the afternoon and in the evening, six days in the week. I confess I'm tired of piquet."

"In that case, and because of your insolence," said Mrs Vincent with cold deliberation, "you may consider yourself discharged, Mr. Middles."

"Very well, ma'am." And he turned toward the door.

"Mr. Middles!"

He halted, his hand on the portiere, and faced about.

She placed her glasses on her modified Roman nose, viewed him steadily and, toying with the cards, inquired:

"Would an increase of salary be any inducement, sir?"

"No."

"Then go!"

He bowed and disappeared.

Her hand sought the bell. Jeames, in livery, both imported from London, responded.

"Hoggins, Mr. Middles is in the hall. Say to him that I wish to see him."

The secretary returned, overcoat on arm, hat in hand.

Mrs. Vincent threw herself back in her chair and, clasping her plump, white hands above her head, said in the conciliatory tone of the negotiator:

"Mr. Middles, let us not act hastily. I acknowledge that I cannot well spare you. Next to myself you are the best piquet player this side of New York."

"I know it, Mrs. Vincent. Indeed I play better than you."

"You do not!"

"I do."

His frozen calmness cowed her.

There was feeling in her words that followed:

"You loved my husband, did you not?"

"I did. He was a father to me. I owe my education to him, and—and—"

"All that you are."

"Which is not much, Mrs. Vincent."

"He was your benefactor and you loved him, yet you refuse so little a thing as to play piquet with your benefactor's widow."

"I do. Gratitude has its limits."

"Evidently. You will not humor an old woman's weakness and lighten the burden of her loneliness."

"I will not. Besides it is not a weakness, but a disease, this insanity for piquet. Moreover, you are not old. On the contrary, Mrs. Vincent, you are still a charming woman, and by withdrawing yourself from the world and giving yourself over to cards you wrong yourself. Worse than that, you fail in your duty to your daughter, who has the life of a nun."

"That is nothing to you, sir!"

"True."

Again he moved toward the door.

"Will nothing," asked the lady in alarm, "induce you to sit down to a game with me—just one?"

"Nothing that you would give, Mrs. Vincent."

"Pooh! You know very well that I'll give anything you ask. I can't do without you. What is it you want?"

"Yourself."

"Eh. You mean—"

"That neither as secretary, protege, nor friend shall I play piquet with you again. As your husband I will."

"God bless my soul!"

To no woman unburied can an offer be long surprising or disagreeable. It was with warm cheeks and softened eyes that the widow said:

"Do I understand that—that you—you love me, Ernst?"

Mr. Middles bowed, but averted his glance.

She sighed and murmured:

"Ah, I am rich."

"Precisely, Mrs. Vincent. You are rich, you love to play piquet, and I am the best player on the Pacific coast. If you will marry me, I will play; if not, not."

"Well?"

"Under the circumstances I do not see that more can rationally be said."

"Cut the cards."

* * * * * * *

Eighteen, golden haired, slim, supple, adorable Adele Vincent flashed her scornful eyes on the visage of Mr. Middles, who, undisturbed, sat at ease in the conservatory.

Mrs. Vincent played solitaire in the adjoining library, awaiting her affianced and piquet.

"Why, mamma is old enough to be your mother, Ernst Middles."

"I know it."

"Your motive in making this monstrous engagement must be purely mercenary."

"Strictly."

"And you feel no shame in making the admission?"

"None."

"Faugh!"

"Don't cry," said Mr. Middles.

"I can't help it. Oh, it is infamous!"

"Yes. Still I congratulate myself."

"Congratulate yourself!"

"Enthusiastically. I have neither the brains nor energy to conquer a fortune, therefore I marry one."

"You can descend to that?"

"I rejoice to find that I can. I am not the fool that I might be. Many men quarrel with their luck. I discover that I am too wise for such folly. Compose yourself, my dear Adele. I'll be a father to you."

"A father! You are but eight years older than I am. Oh, Ernst, consider. You have been a son to mamma and a brother to me. We have grown from childhood together. Papa loved you. Don't, I beg of you, don't make us all ridiculous!"

"My word is given, Adele. As a gentleman, I must keep it."

"A gentleman, indeed! I thought you a man, with a man's courage, a man's honor. Oh!"

"Calm yourself."

"Calm yourself! You put me to humiliation and sell yourself and your talents for —"

"The prizes that talent gives years of conflict to win. I get the prizes without the conflict."

"The brave young man who was to face the world and achieve!"

"I have outgrown the illusions of youth, Adele."

"And you will marry a woman in whose crazed sight your chief merit is your skill at piquet?"

"You have said it."

"At least you have the decency not to pretend that you love mamma."

"Love is a luxury, and luxury is not for the poor. No; I do not love your mother. I love you."

"Me!"

"I have for years."

"You—you—never—"

"Never told you. Why should I? Would you share poverty with me, Adele? Would I, loving you, permit you? You speak of my talents. I have tried to use them. They do not exist."

"And you—"

"Yes, with my whole heart and soul. Love you! God! It is not in me to express how much!"

"I'm very glad to hear it," said Mrs. Vincent, wholly opening the library door.

"Mamma!"

"One word, Ernst Middles. Would you as Adele's husband, and provided for, play piquet with me?"

"With pleasure."

"You'd better marry him, Adele, my child."

"Oh, mamma! after what has happened?"

"Come, Mr. Middles, the cards are waiting."

"But I'm neither your husband nor your son-in-law, Mrs. Vincent."

"So. Adele make up your mind; yes or no. Evidently it must be one or the other of us. Now, Mr. Middles; piquet, if you please."

"Not until after the ceremony, madam."

Poor Old Carl Once More Becomes the Victim of Misplaced Confidence

"Good gracious! but is this you?" exclaimed Sergt. Bendall the other morning as Carl Dunder entered the Woodbridge street station with smiling visage.

"It vhas me, sergeant?"

"Where on earth have you been?"

"Sergeant, vhen I vhas down here tree months ago vhat I tell you?"

"That you were going back to Germany."

"Vhy? Because noddings vhas two times alike in dis country. I vhas all der times in trouble. I doan' catch on."

"And you went."

"No, sir. I vhas right in America all der time, but I vhas worry busy."

"Enlarging your business?"

"My peesness vhas enlarged all right. No, sir; I vhas reading pooks und studying human nature. Dot vhas der troubles mit me pefore—I doan' look at somebody twice, und all der pooks I read vhas a Sherman paper printed in New York. Sergeant, vhas I like hayseed und grass some more?"

"Um! I believe you do look sharper and brighter."

"Und dot looks doan' deceive me. I vhas in Chicago four days."

"No! Well, it takes a pretty good man to go to Chicago and stay four days and get out all right. Anything happen to you?"

"I should sweetly shmile! Dot's vhy I comes down to see you. I like you to know dot der man you calls some hayseeds vhas not so grassy as he looks. Sergeant, I make $450 on der train coming home!"

"No!"

"Shust like tallow or grease."

"Well, by George, let's shake hands on that!"

"Vhas some flies on me, eh?"

"Not a fly. Did you buy a piece of land or something?"

"Sergeant, vhen I goes in dot car I looks all around me to see der peoples. Dot's vhat is called observation. If you doan' observe you doan' know noddings. Dot vhas my troubles before—I don't observe."

"I agree with you, Mr. Dunder."

"Dot makes me happy! Vhell, pooty soon I see a man who was pale and sorry und hard oop. I can tell all dot by his face. I make oudt dot he vhas a poor man who vhas eaten oop by der Kansas grasshoppers. I feel sorry, but maype I like to make some money too. Dot vhas all right, eh?"

"Perfectly correct, Mr. Dunder."

"So, by und by, I goes oafer by him und says: 'My friendt, I see by your eye dot you vhas in some troubles. Shpeak mit me, un doan' be afraid.'"

"That was kind of you."

"Und he said he takes me for an honest man as soon as he comes by dot car. It vhas true about dose grasshoppers, und he vhas going to Canada to die by his mother's arms. He shust haf enough money to get to Kalamazoo, und den he must walk."

"Poor man," sighed the sergeant.

"I feels dot vhay, too, but pooty soon he says he vhas taking home a gold bond to gif to his mother. He donn' belief he can walk from Kalamazoo, und he likes to borrow $50 on dot $500 bond."

"Ah! I begin to see!"

"How vhas dot?"

"Never mind—go on."

"I takes dot bond like dis: If he sends me $75 in five days I mail it to him. If not it vhas my bond. Maype I vhas a haystack, eh?"

"Go on."

"Vhell, it vhas sefen days to-day, und his money doan' come. Dot makes me own der bond. Like enough you could do better—eh?"

"Let me see the bond," dryly remarked the sergeant.

"Here she vhas. It was fife hoonered in gold."

"Yes. Five hundred in sand, more likely! It isn't worth five cents!"

"You don't shpeak!"

"Yes, I do. It's a confidence man's counterfeit bond. I've seen a dozen of them. You've simply been beaten out of $50."

"Vhas she possible! Vhas she possible! Und he doan' send for her?"

"Of course not."

"Und he vhas a sharper?"

"Certainly. It's a wonder you got back with a dollar. Where are you going?"

"Good-bye; sergeant! It vhas no use! I vhas in dis country ten years, but dot make no difference. Nothings vhas two times alike. I like you to come oop to-morrow, after I vhas dead, und tell Shake to be a good poy, und shpeak to my wife I was better off. If you could be in der procession maype I feels better for it, but donn' take too much troubles, und remember dot I vhas all broke in two pieces."—Detroit Free Press.

Democratic County Ticket.

DIRECTOR OF THE POOR,
JOSEPH SHEELY, of Mountpleasant twp.

JURY COMMISSIONER,
ISAAC THOMAS, of Hamilton twp.

A Good Ticket.

The proceedings of the Democratic County Convention yesterday were characterized by the most gratifying harmony and the ticket is entirely acceptable to the party and the people. Both gentlemen are admirably qualified to discharge the duties to which they will be called, and it is the plain duty of all Democrats to give them a cordial support and see that they are triumphantly elected in November. Prepare for the battle in time.

A Great Meeting.

The Yearly Meeting of the German Baptists at Hagerstown, noticed in our last, closed on Thursday, having been one of the most successful gatherings in the history of that important denomination.

The attendance on Tuesday, the first real business day, was about 12,000, and the same estimate answers for Sunday. The weather proved favorable and the situation delightful.

The auditorium erected for the occasion seated about 5,000 people, with standing room on all sides for 2,000 more; and the dining hall accommodated 1,000 guests at a time, 114 young ladies, in their neat white caps, serving the tables. The charge was 25 cents a meal, and the same price prevailed at boarding houses in the city, with same figure for lodging. The place "spread itself" to accommodate the vast crowd, just as Gettysburg does when it gets a "big day."

The standing committee prepares business in advance, taking plenty of time to discuss and examine every phase of a question, thus preventing hasty and immature legislation.

On the subject of divorce, two reports were submitted by the committee, and both voted down. The matter therefore stands as before.

As to the proposed change of name, adverse action was also taken, and the name remains "German Baptist."

The next meeting will be held in central Iowa, the place not yet designated.

The Hagerstown papers are anxious to have the German Baptists back again, early and often. Permit us to put in an oar for Gettysburg and Adams county. The town has become a railroad centre, with excellent facilities for travel and transportation to all outlying points, and no region in the land knows better how to house and feed great crowds of people. In addition, the large membership in this county would feel the compliment one to be appreciated throughout their whole lives.

The Mail concludes its account of the meeting as follows: "The volume of song that arises from the thousands of worshipers is like a storm burst of melody. There is one strong male voice that towers infinitely high above the mass, and one transcendently clear woman's voice that seems to cleave the firmament. The effect is grand and inspiring. There is no rude awakening from the harmony, no clash of any jarring voice. The singing is as marvellous as it is admirable."

New Registry of Voters.

Clerk C. H. Ruff, of the County Commissioners, has received the following letter from the Secretary of the Commonwealth. It will interest and be of value to every voter. Assessors will also find it a ready reference to their duties. The proper books will be prepared and delivered to all the assessors in time for their work. The letter reads:

The bill to change the time and manner of making the registry of voters and the duties of registry assessors has been approved by the Governor. The registration of voters for this year should be made under it instead of under the act of June 30, 1874. The new act requires the assessor to visit in person each and every dwelling house in his election district or division on the first Monday of May and the first Monday of December of each year, or as soon thereafter practicable. It is intended to prohibit the assessor from taking up the transcript or list of voters of the previous assessment. An entirely new registration is to be made. The names are to be entered on the lists in the order in which the dwelling houses are visited, and the qualified electors in each dwelling house are to be grouped together and entered by streets, alleys or courts. The assessor is not to assess any person until after careful inquiry from the voter himself, or of some known resident of the election district or division. In all cases, the assessor is obliged to enter in his book, opposite the name of each voter, the name and residence of the person who shall furnish information as to the residence and qualifications of each voter who is assessed.

Under the act of April, 1874, any assessor who shall knowingly assess any person as a voter, who is not qualified, or shall wilfully refuse to assess any one who is qualified, is liable to punishment by imprisonment not exceeding two years and a fine not exceeding $1,000.

New Fish Law.

The following is the new fish law, as signed by Gov. Pattison: "No person shall catch or kill, in any of the rivers, waters or streams of this Commonwealth any black bass or wall-eyed pike under six inches in length, or any rock bass under five inches in length, under a penalty of ten dollars for every fish so caught. But should any such fish be taken of less size than the above, or should any wall-eyed pike or rock bass of any size be taken from the waters in which they have been introduced within two years from the passage of this act, it shall be the duty of any one taking or capturing the same to return the fish immediately to the water from whence taken, and no person shall by any means or device whatsoever catch or kill in any of the waters of this State any pike or pickerel between the first day of February and the first day of June in any year. Any violation of this section shall subject the offender to a penalty of ten dollars for each and every fish so caught."

THE Governor has signed the Boyer tax bill.

GOVERNOR PATTISON has signed the bill repealing the act making it unlawful to sell clams and oysters during June, July and August.

THE REFORMED CHURCH UNION.—The General Synod of the Reformed Church (Dutch) in America, in session at Asbury Park, N. J., unanimously adopted the report of the joint commission on the proposed union with the Reformed Church (German) in the United States. The latter body met at Philadelphia in special session to consider the proposed union. The report of the joint commission on the proposed union was presented by the Rev. Thomas G. Apple. The terms of the union include the formation of a federal synod to be constituted by an equal number of delegates from the general synod of each church. The report was adopted.

THE baccarat scandal in the London courts, in which the Prince of Wales figures as one of the principal witnesses, must be particularly annoying to the Queen, his proud an eminently proper mother, whose horror of a scandal is equaled only by her unremitted devotion to the proprieties.—Union-Leader. Baccarat resembles the game of "Twenty-one" or "Vingt un."

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD, Canada's distinguished premier, died on Saturday, in his 86th year.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, June 5, 1891.

Editor of the Compiler: Another scandal has cast the shadow of its black wings over this immaculately clean and honest administration. Russell Harrison, not satisfied with travelling more than nine thousand miles free, with meals and refreshments included, on the "President's Special," has been writing letters to railroad managers in all sections of the country, begging for free passes for himself over their roads. Bah. It is almost as nauseating a spectacle as that daily presented by the Prince of Wales in a London court room, where he appears as a witness against one of his friends charged with cheating at cards. Since when has being the President's son given a man the right to ride free on railroads while ordinary folks have to buy tickets? In furnishing the President with a royally equipped special train free, the railroads of course had a right to expect in return official favors, but what can Russell Harrison give them in return for tickets furnished him?

Secretary Gardner, of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, whose word always "goes" here, where everybody knows him, says there was not a particle of truth in the statement published that the executive committee of which he is a member, had met in New York last week for the purpose of booming Senator Gorman for the Presidential nomination. He says: "I have no recollection of that gentleman's name being called, and I know that there was nothing said or done that could be construed as intended to create a sentiment in favor of Gorman or any other man for the Presidency. It is the object of the association of clubs to work for the men nominated by the party, not to take any part in their nomination. It co-operates with the regular organization of the Democratic party in support of Democratic men and Democratic measures. It does not prescribe platforms, but ratifies them; it does not nominate candidates, but supports them."

Representative Wise, of Virginia, is the latest Southern Democrat to declare in favor of the wisdom of selecting a Western man for Speaker of the House. He says, however, that he isn't committed to anybody and that he will not be until he has had an opportunity to consult his colleagues. He favors Cleveland for President, although strongly opposed to his silver views.

Representative McCreary, of Kentucky, spent several days here this week. He is a close political student, and seldom makes a mistake in his predictions. He thinks it will not be very long before United States Senators and the President and Vice-President will be elected by direct vote of the people, and he is in favor of both changes. Gov. McCreary says he feels certain that if Mr. Cleveland has the slightest doubt of his ability to carry New York he will not be a candidate next year.

Commissioner Raum has been absent from his office all this week, and it appears to be generally understood that he is away arranging his private business for the purpose of having something to do when he retires from the Pension Office, as it is thought he will certainly do at or before the close of the present fiscal year.

Representative Bynum is here gathering facts for an article he proposes writing for one of the reviews showing that the much-talked about reciprocity agreement with Brazil is exactly the reverse of beneficial to the United States.

The committee of artists appointed to examine the designs and models submitted to the Director of the Mint for our metal currency, threw them all out—about 300—because none of them were any improvement on the present designs of the coins.

DEM.

Republican Confession.

Don't blame the Democrats. A leading Republican organ frankly places the responsibility for legislative short-comings at the door of its own party. Read the confession of the Scranton Republican, than which there is not a more able or vigorous Republican organ in the State. It says:

"In common parlance, this legislature has not been a success. The majority have disappointed their party most grievously and elated the opposition beyond bounds. Never before in the history of this state has a Republican majority in the legislature had such magnificent opportunities, and in no instance that we can recall have opportunities been more shamefully wasted. The Republicans in this legislature have simply not been equal to the situation that confronted them. Much of the legislation that has been enacted was so badly botched that it might better not have been passed at all.

"It is only just in this connection to remark that the house has shown itself the superior body of the two, and if the senate had done equally well there would be less for Republicans to deplore and be ashamed of. The senators appear to have been the willing victims of execrable outside influence to which they have yielded to the great damage of the Republican party and the detriment of the interests of the commonwealth generally."

HON. W. RUSH GILLAN, Franklin county's bright and able Democratic Representative, is favorably mentioned for State Treasurer. If the coming State Convention should select Mr. Gillan, we know whereof we speak when we say he is entirely able to take care of himself on the stump, or anywhere else; and if any in Pennsylvania don't believe it, let them ask any member of the last House of Representatives, who heard his silver voice ringing out in defence of the people, not only of his own county, but of the whole State; and Franklin will do well to keep him to the front.

OUR Lutheran friends are somewhat surprised to find the Star and Sentinel speaking of the recent General Synod in the same tone which it employs when speaking of a Democratic convention. They say that since the death of the late lamented editor they were not aware that anyone in the office of that paper had any particular interest in the Lutheran Church, and the temper of its criticisms offers certainly no proof of any benevolent interest. Doubtless Lutherans are capable of directing their own affairs, without advice from men who hold to other communions, and it might be discreet for those who assume to represent Gettysburg to allow to a great Church this liberty. There has been, we understand, for some time a feeling abroad that local sentiment here is attempting to dictate the policy of that Church, and that the project for the removal of the Seminary derives its main strength from this feeling. Certainly if the Seminary Board has a single non-resident member who is opposed to removal a free distribution of the last two issues of the Star would make the Board practically unanimous for removal.

RESOLUTIONS.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows, which was unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

The representatives of the Democracy of Adams County, in Convention and Committee to-day assembled, rejoicing over the complete victory at the last November election, thanking Chairman Grammer, the County Committeemen and the Sub-committeemen, for their effectual and successful labors, renewing their prior pledges and determined devotion to the inherent and inalienable rights of the people of the state, the constitution and the confederation of the states, do resolve:

1.—That we point with pride and praise to Gov. Pattison's inaugural or message, recommending and requesting proper legislative enactment for constitutional enforcement, purification of election, equal taxation and better protection for municipal government.

2.—We most emphatically and especially laud and applaud his (the Gov.) patriotic executive effort in insisting upon legislation for the relief and remedy of burdened farmers and destitute laborers, by imposing a pro rata tax upon corporations according to their pecuniary worth and strength.

3.—That we approvingly and gratefully praise the policy and commend the course of the Democratic members in the Senate and House of Representatives as servants of the people, and guardians of their rights and interests for their earnest endeavor to secure the legislation desired by the Gov. and required by both the Gov. and the people; and that in being forced to accept the preceptive and preconcerted, but most incomplete and ineffectual Republican plan of relief and reform, they but performed their Democratic duty with conscientious consistency.

We therefore charge and censure the Republican members with insincerity, violating the pledges and promises of the Quay—Delamater platform, viz: "Ballot Reform," safety of the funds and the investment of the surplus in State or U. S. Bonds in accordance with law and equity. We charge them with defeating all bills that promised and proposed protection to labor and restriction upon corporation avarice and plunder.

4.—That we recur and refer with comfort and consolation to the result of the last Congressional election, when the people gave their verdicts of McKinley we don't need, and their veto against Dictator Reed; and no race war in the people's creed.

5.—That we deprecate and denounce the compulsory educational bill, passed by both branches of the Legislature, it interfering with the private parental right and privilege, therefore undemocratic, unamerican and of doubtful constitutionality.

6.—That we respectfully respond the sentiments of the people by this resolution, expressing approbation of the action and course of Hon. Wm. T. Ziegler and Hon. Edward Sheffer and extend thanks for their faithful and efficient service and especially for their influential aid for the retention of the congressional and judicial districts as at present constituted. Recalling with pride, and repeating with pleasure the glory and grandeur of our last triumph of the State and County tickets; contemplating the crushing unprecented verdict of the American people, giving in the 44 States in 1890, 919,079 Democratic majority on the popular vote, with 29 Democratic Governors out of 44; rejoicing in this majority of strength, and purity of purpose and principle, appealing to the intelligence and integrity of the people of Adams we hope for the election of the ticket to-day nominated to the end that we may be thoroughly united and organized for the promised and possible Presidential contest and victory in 1892.

7.—That we most emphatically endorse the Neeb license bond bill, and respectfully request the Governor's approval, it being consistent with the Jeffersonian principle of equal rights and exact justice.

The following resolution was also adopted:

Resolved, That in the event of the Constitutional Convention bill being approved by Gov. Pattison and thereby becoming a law, this Convention recommends and requests the County Committee to assemble at the call of the Chairman to nominate a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

At 1 p. m. the new County Committee met and re-elected G. L. H. Grammer, Esq., Chairman, W. C. Sheely, Esq., Secretary and Peter C. Stock Treasurer, and adjourned to meet at the call of the Chairman.

The 72d Wins.

The Harrisburg Patriot of Saturday has this: "The survivors of the gallant Seventy-second regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, have won a signal victory from the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association after a fierce conflict of four years' duration. The Supreme Court yesterday handed down an opinion which gives the regiment the right to place its monument on the site selected by it. Colonel Batchelder, battlefield historian, and the Memorial Association four years ago refused to permit the regiment to locate its monument near the stone wall in the 'bloody angle,' alleging that the regiment had not been engaged at that point. The regiment claimed that the stone wall had been reached in a charge on the enemy and refused to submit to the dictations of the association and Colonel Batchelder. The controversy was carried into the Adams court and thence to the supreme court.

"The regiment already has one monument on the field on the original line and within fifty feet of the location desired for the present monument. It has a beautiful bronze monument representing a zouave with clubbed musket, which cost $3,000, stored at Gettysburg for two years. It will be placed in position now on a granite base and dedicated by the regiment on the Fourth of July."

We understand extensive arrangements are in progress for the occasion, including a sham battle and other display. A delegation of the old Volunteer Fire Department of Philadelphia, with apparatus will accompany them. As before stated our Steam Fire Engine Company will house the apparatus.

Resignation of Surgeon General Hamilton.

The press dispatches of last week said that Dr. John B. Hamilton, of the Marine Hospital Service, had resigned that office and accepted the position of professor of the principles of surgery in Rush Medical College, Chicago, Ill., and that he will be succeeded as Surgeon General by Surgeon Walter Wyman.

From later dispatches it is learned that Dr. Hamilton will not leave the service entirely, but that he will return to the rank of a Surgeon, and have charge of the Marine Hospital in Chicago.

Unless the selection of Dr. Hamilton's successor has already been made as intimated it might be well to invite the attention of the President to the fact that four or five years ago, when it was thought probable that President Cleveland would accept Dr. Hamilton's resignation, Surgeon George W. Stoner was favorably mentioned for promotion to the office of Supervising Surgeon General. He was recommended by all the officers of the corps and by Dr. Hamilton himself, and the newspapers of the several ports on the Atlantic coast where Dr. Stoner had served, notably Portland, Boston, and especially Newport, were strongly in favor of his promotion. Dr. Stoner was at that time Chief of the Purveying and Quarantine Division in the Surgeon General's office.

In December, 1888, one month following the election, Dr. Stoner was ordered to Detroit, Michigan, and is now in charge of the Marine Hospital service at that port. He is also Professor of Surgery in the College of Medicine and Surgery, and Vice President of the Medical and Library Association in that city. It is needless to say that Dr. Stoner is a Democrat; he belongs to a Democratic family, and for that reason may not be eligible at this time for promotion to the Surgeon Generalship. But as the Marine Hospital service is not a political organization, there is no good reason why Dr. Stoner should not now be promoted, except, perhaps, as his brother, (ex-Clerk of the Courts C. W. Stoner,) says, "he don't believe he wants it, that the salary is not a sufficient inducement," his position of Surgeon being now almost equally remunerative. Dr. Hamilton was kept in office during Cleveland's administration, and there is now a good opportunity for President Harrison to rise above partisanship by appointing the best man for the place.

Dr. Stoner is a native of this county, but was appointed into the U. S. Marine Hospital service from New York. He entered the service in the same class with, and his record stands second only to that of, the retiring Supervising Surgeon General.

HON. AMOS J. CUMMINGS, of New York, is on a visit to Hon. Charles F. Crisp, at Americus, Ga. ACROSS the deep, to the far west, on steamboats, cars and stage coaches, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and execrable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick-headache, an is an incomparable cure for costiveness and biliousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

A HARRISBURG paper says: While overhauling his department at Harrisburg the other day, Adjutant General McClelland came across the flag and staff which President Lincoln held in his hand when he delivered his famous Gettysburg oration on Nov. 19, 1863. It is probable that it will be exhibited at the World's Fair, Chicago.

LA GRIPPE AGAIN.—During the epidemic of La Grippe last season Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, proved to be the best remedy. Reports from the many who used it confirm this statement. They were not only quickly relieved, but the disease left no bad after results. We ask you to give this remedy a trial and we guarantee that you will be satisfied with results, or the purchase price will be refunded. It has no equal in La Grippe, or any Throat, Chest or Lung Trouble. Trial bottles free at J. M. Huber's Drug Store. Large bottles 50c. and $1. (2)

THE recent severe storm in North Dakota caused heavy losses to sheep owners. Fifty thousand sheep have been imported into the State within the last month, by farmers and stock companies, and in very few instances were the owners prepared to house them during the lambing period. The losses are knocking the profits out of the whole industry.

ASK YOUR FRIENDS ABOUT IT.—Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. REMARKABLE FACTS.—Heart disease is usually supposed to be incurable, but when properly treated a large proportion of cases can be cured. Thus Mrs. Elmira Hatch, of Elkhart, Ind., and Mrs. Mary L. Baker, of Ovid, Mich., were cured after suffering 20 years. S. C. Linburger, druggist at San Jose, Ill., says that Dr. Miles New Heart Cure, which cured the former, "worked wonders for his wife." Levi Logan, of Buchanan, Mich., who had heart disease for 30 years, says two bottles made him "feel like a new man." Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold and guaranteed by John M. Huber. A NATIONAL EVENT.—The holding of the World's Fair in a city scarcely fifty years old will be a remarkable event, but whether it will really benefit this nation as much as the discovery of the Restorative Nervine by Dr. Franklin Miles is doubtful. This is just what the American people need to cure their excessive nervousness, dyspepsia, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, etc. It acts like a charm. 6th Pa. Cavalry.

Saturday afternoon a train of seven cars drawn by a powerful Reading railroad engine drew up at the G. & H. station, after a run of five hours from Philadelphia, with 160 veterans and friends of the 6th Penna. Cavalry, to see the battlefield and dedicate a monument at Meade's Headquarters to companies E and I, who were on duty there during the battle. The party proceeded to their headquarters at the McClellan House. Later in the evening the business meeting was held in the Court-room, when Gen. Chas. L. Leiper was chosen president for the ensuing year, George Whitcomb vice president, A. S. Patton secretary, W. J. Cramer treasurer and Conrade McAvoy chaplain. A camp-fire followed with speeches and songs. A letter was read from Chaplain Gracey, who conducted the Sunday evening services when they were here several years ago, and is now Consul at Fu-Chau, China.

A general trip over the battlefield was made on Sunday, notwithstanding the rain which fell all day, and in the evening the visitors attended services at the Methodist church.

Yesterday morning the monument, a graceful shaft on a massive base, with bronze historical plate, was dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage, Gen. Leiper presiding. Bugler Ellis Pugh, of the Phila. City Troop, opened with the call, after which Rev. W. H. Keith, of this place, offered prayer. Comrade J. S. Moore, of Co E, made an address, followed by the oration of the day by Major G. I. Whitehead and acceptance by Supt. Calvin Hamilton. After the doxology and benediction by Rev. Keith, Bugler Pugh closed with the call "Boots and Saddles." The party left by special train about noon yesterday. Col. George Meade, son of Gen. Meade, was with the party.

THE OLD GRAVEYARDS.—A joint meeting of the St. James Lutheran and the Reformed congregations took place in the lecture room of the latter, on Saturday afternoon, in reference to the two graveyards on East High street held jointly by them. Rev. Dr. Swartz was called to the chair and Chas E. Stahle, Esq., made secretary. A resolution against any further burials in the old graveyards was unanimously adopted, and Messrs R. M. Elliott and J. George Wolf were appointed a committee to secure releases of the lots still held by a few individuals. The officers to have charge of the graveyards during the ensuing year, or until successors are chosen, are: President, David Troxel; Treasurer, John Bender; Secretary, J. L. Butt, Esq. Mr. Samuel Herbst, the only one left of the old board of officers, declined further service. He has been the active man for years.

MEETING OF THE STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE, June 10th and 11th, in the Court-house.—Again a pressing invitation is extended to every citizen of the county to attend the meeting. Bring your wives, daughters and sons. Remember there will be no discussions that will be objectionable to any lady. The members are coming from all over the state, bringing their wives, daughters and sons, asking me for hotel accommodations, and others not members. The people of Adams county can rest assured they will not get another meeting of the Board of Agriculture for twenty-five years to come. Your humble servant has pressed the meeting three years; at length obtained it, whilst a large number of counties have not had one meeting.
1t ISRAEL GARRETSON.

A MEETING will be held at Biglerville School-house, Saturday evening, June 20th, at 7.30, for the purpose of offering for sale a Road Machine at a reduced figure on reasonable terms. LLOYD—GRAY.—A very pleasant wedding occurred at the home of the bride's mother, on West Green street, Mechanicsburg, at eight o'clock Tuesday morning, when Weir B. Lloyd, son of Senator Wm. Penn Lloyd, was united in marriage to Miss Lizzie Gray. The wedding was a very quiet one, none but the immediate families being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. N. Fegley, of St. Mark's Lutheran church. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd left immediately on an extended trip to Philadelphia and the sea shore. They have our best wishes for much happiness.—Journal.

The Season's Event.

THE GRAND EXHIBITION THAT HARRISBURG WILL GIVE CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA.

Of course such a wonderful entertainment as the Siege of Sebastopol, will be witnessed by enormous crowds. For the public accommodation all the railroads leading to Harrisburg will issue excursion tickets, with the privilege of returning home after each performance by special train. The beautiful Island Park, where the "Siege" will be produced, is a charming spot in the middle of the Susquehanna river. The vast auditorium, the artificial harbor, the scenery, the huge stage and the entire surroundings will be perfect in every respect. This will be the opportunity of a life-time to behold at a very small cost the superb spectacle which will cause tens of thousands to flock to Harrisburg this season. The presentation will be exactly the same as that which captured New York and Chicago last year. Its first appearance in Pennsylvania will be at Island Park, Harrisburg, on Tuesday, June 16, 1891. It will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings of the same week, and for the two weeks thereafter on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, that everybody may be permitted to enjoy the gorgeous culmination of genius in this interesting field.

From Cashtown.

One day last week, while some cows were grazing along the W. M. R. R. below Orrtanna, they got on the track, and when the train came it ran against one of Isaac Mickley's, of Cashtown, and broke a leg, knocked off a horn and broke her back. Mr. Mickley is doctoring her and she is doing very well.

Some time after he was found in an unconscious condition reclining on the platform of a well at the barn, his head resting against a post. He was at once taken to the house and Dr. Robert Horner quickly summoned, who pronounced it a case of heart disease, from which he had suffered, and that death must have occurred some time before he was found. Mr. Eckert's kindness of heart and upright conduct had drawn toward him the respect of all who knew him, and this was attested by the very large attendance at his funeral on Thursday morning, when Rev. T. J. Barkley, of the Reformed church, delivered a touching address. Mr. Eckert was 54 years 8 months and 2 days of age and leaves a wife, son and daughter to mourn this sudden affliction.

CAMpaiNe of EDUcaTIOn

WE adopted this plan in business some time before it was used by the great leader in politics, and have made it a success beyond our most sanguine expectations. The new plank of cash introduced March 1st into our platform has been quickly learned by our old friends and made us hosts of new ones.

Our educational campaign plan was made on the idea of educating our customers to good goods, good values, and therefore we have never offered anything for sale but that which we could honestly recommend. The people have confidence in what we say and they vote their dollars in exchange for the biggest dollar's worth of goods to be had anywhere. Our advertisement in this paper previous to this one explains why "the biggest." We are now in position to educate in

When to Cut Grass for Hay.

During many years of careful observation I have noticed that grass is rarely cut for hay at that state of growth which is most relished by grazing stock; that the cutting is almost universally deferred until it has attained a degree of maturity which causes grazing stock, if they have a choice, to avoid it, in their preference for a less mature or younger stage of growth. Everybody must have noticed the patches in pastures where the grass has matured, and how sedulously it is avoided. Concurrent with this had been the observation that great gain in flesh and fatness, health and strength of grazing stock was made mainly during the season of those stages of growth preceding the common "haying" season, and that stock put to grass after the maturing of the crop "fit for haying" rarely made any great gain, and never such gain as is made when such stock are put upon the young grasses of the early Spring. Compare a cow from an August pasture with one from a pasture in early June. See with what difference they fill themselves! Notice the difference with which they fill the milk pail. Very few grazing animals on grass all the season maintain in August the flesh gained in June.

These facts had produced with me an impression that earlier cutting of the grass would be better. Just then appeared, at a Winter meeting of the New York State Agricultural Society in Albany, a farmer from Vermont with samples of Winter-made butter. It had all the characteristics in color, in flavor, in fragrance and other qualities of the freshest of May or June butter. After unanimous approval, the question was raised, how was it produced? What food is used to make Spring butter in mid-Winter? The maker replied that the stock from which the butter had been made had been kept exclusively on hay and water. Conjecture then naturally turned to the direction of artificial coloring and flavor. To such intimations the maker made a simple denial. His cows were fed only on hay and water, and the butter was produced from their milk in the ordinary way; no coloring, no flavoring and no adjuvants of any kind were used. At length after much bantering and badgering the maker exclaimed: "My hay," he said, "may differ somewhat from the ordinary article. It is cut at the time when stock seem to relish it most, and gain on it most rapidly. I do not see why timothy straw should be any better than oats straw or wheat straw, and that is what your grass becomes if you let it go too far. I cut my grass long before it is heading, not to say blossoming, and as it has then formed no seed it does not exhaust soil. But at the same time it has formed no fiber to be masticated and digested without affording nutrition. All its weight then is nutriment. True, I do not begin to get the yield per acre then that would be obtained by waiting until the seed had matured and the stalks become wood straw; but for this same reason the roots, still in their vigor, send up new shoots, tiller out, and produce a second crop by the time of ordinary haying. Ordinarily, I get three and four cuttings per year where I should obtain but one were the grass allowed to mature its stalk and seed, and these three or four cuttings always weigh more than the crop would weigh if matured in the ordinary way."

There is another consideration in this connection worthy of entertainment. Daisies and carrots are the bugbear, the terror of hay growers. They must seed the second year or die out. Cut three or four times every year, they will inevitably disappear, and with them many other weeds. Grass, cut early, before forming headstalks, needs curing differently from ordinary hay. It must be cured in the cock to get the full benefit of all its qualities. Drying in the sun will certainly powder its tenderest, most succulent and juicy parts, and thus waste its most valuable properties. It should lie exposed to sun no longer after cutting than sufficient to dry off the visible dew. When properly cured not a leaf will break in the hand. It will be soft, pliable and sweet smelling. In these days of mowing machines three or four cuttings will cost little; while the increased production over a single cutting, together with the higher nutritious quality of the product and the repression of weeds, would seem to make this plan much preferable to the ordinary one of haying timothy straw.—Amer. Agri.

Salt Water Baths.

Salt water baths are an excellent tonic; taken warm they are delightfully refreshing when one is heated or tired, and taken cold they are the best preventive in the world of too great susceptibility to colds. One delicate woman, who used to insist that she "caught a cold on coming into the world and had never been without one since," became as indifferent to damp and draughts as a sailor after a year's trial of salt baths.

For those who have sensitive gums, inclined to bleed on the slightest provocation, a mouth wash of salt and cold water used once or twice a day will harden the gums and prevent soreness. As salt is a styptic, any slight bleeding may be checked by treating the part with salt water. Persons who have tender feet will find them growing much less sensitive day by day if treated to a daily brisk rubbing with cold salt water.—New York Evening Sun

YOUNG chicks will become afflicted with lice as soon as hatched. The lice leave the fowls and go to the chicks. As soon as a hen comes off with a brood rub a few drops of melted lard or oil on the skin of neck and head of the hen and dust the chicks well with insect powder.

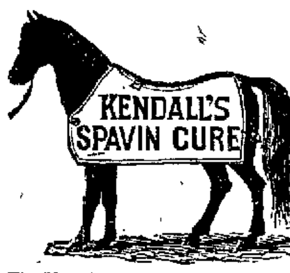

It is known that a good washing of the pigs will sometimes cause them to grow and thrive, especially if they are washed with strong soapsuds. This is due to the fact that the pigs are sometimes annoyed with parasites, or lice, which the suds destroy, thus relieving the pigs and permitting them to have more sleep and ease.

THE DEPTH OF DRAINS.—The relation of the depth and distance apart of drains is considered by Klippart as follows: The idea that depth will compensate for frequency in all cases seems now to be abandoned. It is conceded that clay soils, which readily absorb moisture, and yet are strongly retentive, cannot be drained with sufficient rapidity, or even thoroughness, by drains at any depth, unless they are also within certain distances. In a porous soil, as a general rule, the deeper the drain the further it will draw.

WARPING OF WOOD.—As lumber is now sawn, every board but one will warp and curl up in the process of seasoning. The reason for this is plain. If the board be sawn from the side of the log the grain rings of the wood lie in circles, which have a greater length on one than upon the other side of the board. A board cut from the very center of the log has grain circles of equal length upon each side, and will lie perfectly flat when seasoned.

THERE is nothing surprising. The French now freeze milk in blocks and sell it in that condition.

Potato Beetles.

The excitement occasioned by the first appearance of the potato beetle has been followed by a reaction, which is seriously affecting the interests of farmers by causing them to adopt a too limited system of treatment. Many farmers, who at first declared that they would not raise potatoes if they could not do it without using poison, had their anger aroused by the uselessness of their attempt to reduce the enemy in any other way, and are now handling the poison as carelessly as if it was salt. But this carelessness was not the subject to be discussed in this article. The increased care and attention which the beetles have obliged people to bestow on the potato crop in order to get their supply from as small a field as possible, has brought out many useful facts, and one which many farmers are using to their own injury. Having learned that when the tops begin to fade the growth of the tubers is nearly ended, they think only of the present crop and let the beetles have peaceable possession of the field for the remainder of the season. There is no hope of exterminating these pests, for they have come to stay; but the same is true of weeds, and many farmers who know the result of letting weeds go to seed in the field and are very careful to avoid it, will let the beetles feed and breed on their potato tops from the time when the tubers get their growth until the frost comes, without a thought of the fact that the ground will be full of the insects ready to come out the first warm day and destroy the first leaf that appears above the surface.

It is useless to expect that all farmers will see and act upon the importance of killing off the late broods, and it would be difficult to enforce a law in regard to it as it would be difficult to oblige men to use poison when they think it is dangerous or improper.

But many farmers can do much for their own protection by using poison on their fields as long as there is anything for the beetle to feed on. This method would be as effectual as the killing of weeds late in the season to save the labor of killing so many the next year.

Many people are inclined to act on the principle that it is useless to contend with an evil that cannot be wholly wiped out, and for this reason weeds and insects are allowed to multiply when a little labor at the proper time would have reduced their number so that their presence would have been hardly felt. But the life of the farmer, as well as of other people, must be one of constant care and watchfulness, and evils as well as temptations must be resisted when they are met; and these beetles are no exception, but are simply an addition to the list.—Weekly Union.

Fred and Joe.

Fred and Joe are boys of the same age. Both have their way to make in the world. This is the way Joe does: When work is before him he waits as long as he can: he hates so to touch it. Then he does not half do it. He is almost sure to stop before it is done. He does not care if fault is found. He says: "I can't help it," or "I don't care."

Fred's way is not the same. He goes straight to his work, and does it as soon as he can and as well as he can. He never slights work for play, though he loves play as well as Joe does. If he does not know how to do a piece of work well, he asks some one who does know, and then he takes care to remember. He says:

"I never want to be ashamed of my work."

Which boy, do you think, will make a man to be trusted?—Selected.

THE ORIGIN OF PETROLEUM.—Many persons are disposed to call petroleum coal oil, under the impression that it comes from coal and has a vegetable origin. That is not, however, the view, commonly, of geologists and other scientists. They hold that it is of animal origin and comes of the fat of the animals whose remains were, ages ago, covered with sediment at the bottom of the sea, which sediment was subsequently solidified into sandstone and other kinds of stone. The geological conditions of the occurrence of petroleum suggest its animal origin. Engler produced an artificial petroleum from animal fats.

IF Delamater had been elected Governor last November the bank he managed would not have been compelled to suspend. The moneys of the State would have been placed in its vaults to tide it over its difficulties. That is the way insolvent money institutions have been sustained by Republican State Treasurers for many years. The bankers thus favored use the money without paying a dollar of interest to the State. Is it not about time for the taxpayers to vote for a change? Does it pay the farmer, mechanic and workingman to continue in power a party that abuses the confidence of the people and allows a wholesale plundering of the public treasury?—Bloomfield Dem.

IN the Daily Picayune of New Orleans, of May 13th, is an advertisement giving a record of the drawings of the Louisiana lottery company for the twelve months ending April 14th, 1891. In the list of prize winners for the drawing of February 17th, 1891, appears the Keystone National Bank of Philadelphia, credited with a prize of $5,000. If this indicates that the Keystone Bank was in the lottery business, it is fair to infer that some of its own funds, and perhaps some of the State and Philadelphia money, went into the insatiate maw of the great swindle which flourishes in the Crescent City.—Harrisburg Call.

GEN. TOTTEN, of Yale University, predicts "that the millenium will commence at the close of the present century, and that next year the series of wars that are to precede it will begin."

Over Again.

Across the pathway, myrtle fringed,
Under the maple, it was hinged,
The little wooden gate;
'Twas there, within the quiet gloam,
When I had strolled with Nelly home,
I used to pause and wait.
"Good night," I'd say; "Good night—good-by!"
"Good night" from her, with half a sigh—
"Good night," "Good night!" And then—
And then I do not go, but stand—
Again lean on the railing, and then—
Begin it all again!

FRUITS!

To Double Crops & Make trees Bear Every Year.

CHANGING THE QUALITY OF FRUIT ON LARGE TREES.

THE undersigned has had more than 25 years' experience in the Nursery business, growing fruits and training fruit trees, &c.

Had several large seedling Black Cherry trees standing on valuable soil. The trees were thriving, and 25 and 30 feet high. Some trees were 60 inches circumference near the surface. The cherries that the trees had produced were of inferior quality. Then in August, 1889, I budded all the leading side branches and a number of buds were put on the top branches, on trees 30 feet high.

In this season operations were made on all the side branches and on all the top branches of the trees, and the quality of fruit is now changed on large cherry trees to produce valuable crops in future time.

TRAINING SOME VARIETIES OF APPLE TREES in orchards that the apple crop can be grown more regular in various seasons, to grow larger crops in seasons when there is a demand for apples at favorable figures.

In the season of 1888 the apple crop was very large in America and in the winter season of 1888, until in March, 1889, apples were dull sale in Baltimore and in the cities of the United States; and in some villages in Adams county, Pa., apples sold at 25 cents a bushel in March 1889; then a considerable quantity had rotted that had grown in various orchards; and as there was no demand for apples that were grown in 1888 in the cities of the United States at favorable figures are proofs that the apple crop was also large in Europe and on Islands in 1888.

Apple trees are known to thrive and produce crops on qualities of soil that grow wheat and corn, in America, in Europe and on Islands.

In the season of 1887 the apple crop was not large, and in February 1890, apples sold at $1 a bushel in various markets in Adams county.

TRAINING APPLE TREES to grow valuable crops in all seasons, under favorable treatment. York Imperial apples have been seen to grow as large as a pound apple and the York Stripe apples have been grown on many trees as large as Smoke-house apples, in various soils.

In various orchards the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe are known to bear full crops every other year. And it has occurred in many orchards that many York Imperial and Baldwin trees have full crops in seasons when winter apples are dull sale in cities in the winter months.

WITH TRAINING INSTRUMENTS, York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe trees that have apples this season can be changed through operations of training, so that the trees will have apples next year, 1891. It is necessary for the operation of training to be done in the month of September and October.

TRAINING YOUNG APPLE ORCHARDS that the trees will bear regular crops when commencing to bear. I have witnessed young apple orchards to bear regular crops every season on trees that have been properly trained; and the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe trees, that were properly trained in a young orchard, when the trees had commenced to bear, they had apples every season.

Operations of training can be done to young apple orchards through the winter months and in any month in the year when possible to spare the time.

THE VALUE OF APPLE GROWING is not yet correctly known. Have witnessed the York Stripes to grow as large as a Smoke-house apple and the York Imperial as large as a Pound Apple under favorable treatment. A number of the latest and best keeping varieties of winter apples can be much improved by proper treatment, and apples be grown much larger in size. The Baldwin, Smith's Cider, Domine, R. I. Greening, Winesap, Grimes Golden and Roxbury Russett can be much improved in size and quality through good treatment. Have witnessed training instruments when properly used to be the best treatment that can be rendered to trees to effect bearing of regular crops and to grow apples and fruits larger in size.

IMPORTANT TREATMENT FOR GROWING PEACHES.—After peach trees are planted to grow peaches treatment of training add very valuable results. I have witnessed a peach orchard that was trained with instruments that produced 2 and 3 bushels of peaches per tree a season. During 25 and 24 year's time the peaches ripened well and were of good size and were delivered to canners in York Springs and canners at other places. Scarcely a season had occurred that there was not a crop of peaches.

IMPORTANT INTERESTS CAN BE OBTAINED, as realized through planting peach trees along fences, to grow peaches. I have witnessed peach trees that were planted along fences, the trees had the attention of training, and they produced crops of peaches 2 and 3 bushels a tree. During 25 and 30 year's time the peaches were nice size and of perfect quality and were sold to canners at various places what were not needed for home use. The trees had all been budded when planted and had been taken out of the nursery as large in size as they could be obtained. They were planted along fences where there were no other trees and the fences were kept clean of thorns and rubbish, and peach growing resulted successfully along fences. One row of peach trees along a fence in a few years' time the trees flourished and received nourishment from the fertilizer in corn and wheat, &c.

IT IS A VERY TRUE FACT that on many farms and residences planting peach trees into orchards to grow peaches have proven failures, and peach orchards on many farms and locations have proven to be short lived.

Peaches can be successfully grown along fences that are kept clean of thorns and rubbish, and then rendering to the trees simple treatment to prevent the yellows.

PROTECTION can be rendered to peach trees that are planted along fences, with wire and posts at a moderate expense, to secure the trees from becoming injured by stock or cattle, and with simple treatments peaches can be successfully grown along fences of perfect quality, along soil where wheat and corn is grown.

WHEAT AND CORN require some simple attention to grow perfect crops, and peach trees will do their duty when standing near corn and wheat, and with simple treatments produce favorable crops of luscious fruits in their season.

SEASON to train peach trees is through the winter months and in the spring until May. Securing peach trees from the yellows has to be attended to in November before the earth freezes up solid.

Baldwin and York Imperial apple trees have to be treated with some very special care in September and October, that have apples this season, if the trees are desired to have apples next season, in 1891.

I calculate to render some service to orchardists in various parts of Adams county, Pa., at periods when possible to spare the time. To train trees, and will then make known the treatments to secure peach trees healthy and productive during many years time.
